

CONFLICT WATCH

POLESTAR INSIGHTS

REPORTING PERIOD: 7 SEPTEMBER 2026 - 13 SEPTEMBER 2026

SITUATION

The standing backdrop in several of these countries includes armed conflict, insurgent violence and intermittent strikes on civilians. In this window, however, the traceability standard for current conflict themes is not met because no canonical current incident IDs were supplied.

That leaves the operating picture incomplete. A quiet or thinly supported window does not show that risk has gone away, but it does mean current judgements must stay tightly constrained.

TOP ACTIVITY AREAS

MYANMAR

Myanmar's sharpest activity this period centres on Rakhine State and Sagaing Region, where bombings, airstrikes and insurgent attacks are threatening nearby communities, roads, checkpoints and nearby worksites. The rest of Myanmar has stayed largely clear. Recent cases involved a bombing or airstrike near Sagaing Region with casualties reported on 9 Sep and a bombing or airstrike in Myanmar with casualties reported on 13 Sep. Several of these attacks killed people.

PAKISTAN

Pakistan saw heavier activity around Balochistan and the Afghan border, where insurgent attacks and armed clashes can reach government and security sites, nearby communities and nearby worksites. These included an insurgency attack near the Afghan border with casualties reported on 12 Sep and an insurgency attack near Balochistan with casualties reported on 10 Sep. Some proved lethal.

INDIA

India also flares around the Maoist (Naxal) belt and Manipur, where insurgent attacks and armed clashes have struck government and security sites, power and fuel sites and nearby worksites. The rest of the country is comparatively calm. Notable cases involved an insurgency attack in India with casualties reported on 9 Sep and an armed clash near Manipur with casualties reported on 13 Sep. There were fatalities.

OTHER WATCHED THEATRES

Lower-level activity also showed in Sri Lanka, Philippines, Indonesia, Thailand, West Papua and Malaysia. The most notable case involved an armed clash in Sri Lanka with casualties reported on 12 Sep in Sri Lanka. It was quieter there this period, but any of these could worsen quickly on a single clash or attack, so they stay on watch.

WHAT MATTERS FOR BUSINESS

The main issue is uncertainty rather than a confirmed multi-country escalation. With no canonical current incident IDs, there is not enough traceable evidence here to rank theatres by current kinetic impact or to support a firm judgement on where disruption is most likely to intensify.

For continuity planning, that means avoiding false precision. Movement, site access and staff updates should be guided by local checks in the specific areas named in the incident list, rather than by any broader regional conclusion from this window alone.

WATCH NEXT

- Expect further bombings, airstrikes and insurgent attacks around Rakhine State. The signal to watch is repetition - the same districts or routes being hit more than once.
- The clearest sign of escalation is spread: violence reaching neighbouring areas, or fresh checkpoints, road closures and curfews. That would mean the fighting is widening rather than easing.
- Above all, watch for any attack close to a depot, worksite, convoy route or key infrastructure. That is the point where this stops being background reading and becomes a live duty-of-care concern.

POLESTAR VIEW

Risk level: Moderate. The constraint this week is poor traceability, not a confirmed broadening of conflict. Disruption is most likely to remain localised around the named incident areas, and the immediate requirement is to verify conditions on the ground before changing travel, access or continuity arrangements.
