POLESTAR VIEW

Cargo-security exposure this period is inland transport-led and concentrated around India, and most consistent with opportunistic, financially motivated theft, not a coordinated or politically driven campaign. The data supports a picture of cargo theft in transit and warehouse theft affecting inland transport exposure, with moderate severity most common and losses on cargo owners and logistics providers. It does not support claims of an organised cross-border network, a confirmed insider or seal-compromise dimension, or a statistically meaningful surge, none of which the records establish. Reporting is drawn from open sources with only partial enrichment: loss values, cargo types and movement stage are frequently unstated, so totals and shares are indicative, not exhaustive. In the near term, further inland transport incidents of a similar character are likely in and around India, absent a change in local enforcement or operators' own measures. Overall analytical confidence is moderate to high, reflecting corroborating volume against open-source and enrichment limitations.
